Actually these red crested cardinals, also known as "Brazillian Cardinals" were introduced to Hawaii around 1930 from South America.

Whenever a tourist starts to say "Wha..." I tell them "Brazillian Cardinal!" cause I know they're going to ask me "What's the bird with the red head?"

The background of this painting features red hibiscus and Kilauea falls on Kauai. This 11x14 oil painting is on special and will sell fast!

By the way, What is under the hibiscus...?

"THE Low Biscus!"

Patrick Ching's Artistic Insight for December

"One challenge of a nature artist is to create miles of distance on a flat canvas. For example distant mountains have lots of sky color in them. Remember that as things get closer they get brighter, darks get darker, lights get lighter."

$300 for 6 sessions.
